ELEVEN INNINGS

Perrysburg Team Defeated Visitors in Hotly Contested Game.

Perrysburg defeated the fast Teds of Toledo in an eleven inning game Sunday afternoon, 4 to 3. It was a see-saw affair and kept the fans on edge throughout the game.

The visitors were the first to score. Pete singled and scored on Freddy's foul hit. Perrysburg forced ahead in the fourth inning. C. Reis singled and was sacrificed to second by Miller. On F. Reis' infield tap C. Reis scored; F. Reis going to third on the visitors' wild throwing. On Harper's sacrifice F. Reis scored. Pringle hit into a fast double play. The Toledoans tied the score in the sixth on two hits on errors, and went ahead in the seventh on a walk, hit and an error. This ended the Teds scoring.

The locals came back in the eighth and tied the score. C. Reis' hit was sacrificed to third by Miller and F. Reis and scored on Harper's hit.

The winning run did not come until the eleventh inning. Pringle hit safe; Tinney singled; both runners moved up a base when Engle was hit by a pitched ball, with the bases full. C. Reis got his fifth hit of the game and scored Pringle with the winning run.

The features were the hitting of Pete of the visitors, who gathered three hits; and the pitching of Engle and hitting and base running of C. Reis, getting five hits and scoring two runs.

Engle had 12 strikeouts and allowed 6 hits.

Peltski had 8 strikeouts and 12 hits were gathered off his delivery.

ANSWERS COUNTRY'S CALL

Capt. Greenhalgh and Troop D Join the Colors.

That Perrysburg will be represented at the front when Uncle Sam crosses the border into Mexico is assured by the fact that Troop D Cavalry, stationed at Toledo is in command of Capt. George H. Greenhalgh of Perrysburg.

The Captain will leave Toledo on Saturday with his Troop for Columbus, Ohio, where they will mobilize before starting south.

Recruiting to full strength of 100 men is now the order and the officers are busy taking care of the patriotic boys who are anxious to enlist.

That Capt. Greenhalgh and his noble boys shall be permitted to return home again and receive the honors due to those who sacrifice business, health and home for the glorious and noble service of "Our Country," is the prayer of all our people.

NEW CENTURY PICNIC.

As stated in the Journal last week, the New Century Club closed their year's work with a picnic at Walbridge at which former members of the Club were guests.

A dinner that was a feast and a program that proved a gem were provided for entertainment.

The welcome address was given by Mrs. M. B. Cook, who soared to lofty heights in her recital of the great accomplishments of the club. In part she said:

"The past has shown many brilliant years, but none has excelled 1916. No height of literary attainment has been left unscaled; no problem unsolved; no question but has been discussed, weighed and measured and decided for this and all future generations. . . . The realms not only of History and Mystery; of Philology and Biology, but even of Poetry have been invaded and laurel wreaths wrested therefrom, which now rest upon already alarmingly distended brows."

She closed with a pleasing compliment and cordial greeting to the guests who were the Alumni of the club.

The response to the welcome address was given by Mrs. Mills, who, looking backward into the years that are gone, spoke in rhyme of the first great achievement of the club as follows:

"It is with pleasure and pride I respond to this greeting from the members to the graduates at the first annual meeting. A pleasure to meet, in a social way, those who have left and those who stay, and pride to have been a member of so noted a band, composed of the brightest and best in the land. Of the things they've accomplished I will mention a few; both in Civic improvement and Club work, too: There once was a place called 'Corn Cob Hill,' and but for the efforts of the club it would be called so, still. Just for a lark they made it into a park, and this is how they helped pay the bill: They had a play they called a 'Convention,' made up of Old Maids and there was quite a contention, to see who would be made young, nimble and handsome, by Pinkerton Jones who, with no thought of ransom, used his wonderful elixir and remodeling machine; accomplishing such wonders as was never seen. The play was a success and the proceeds helped pay the bill, which eventually put an end to corn cob hill."

She concluded by relating a pleasing incident illustrating the manner in which one member impressed upon the mind of her young son the great amount of wisdom she had obtained by her membership in the club.

Mrs. G. W. Alexander gave the "History of the Club" and in part said: This club was organized very early in the beginning of the Twentieth Century, when two or three of Perrysburg's intelligent, enthusiastic women decided that something of the kind was

SOME EARLY HISTORY

THE EXECUTION OF GEORGE PORTER.

By DWIGHT R. CANFIELD

Near the end of the Fort, in the deep ravine, Where the morning suns first shine, They built a gallows years ago, Constructed of oak and pine; Thereon they hung a mortal man, By the neck till he was dead, While a morbid throng, devoid of shame, Looked on,—till life had fled.

And I often wonder, when near the spot, Where the ugly scaffold stood, If the dead man's ghost, enwrapped in shroud, Haunts not the nightly wood; And whether while wandering to and fro, From fields beyond our ken, It suffers in silence, or deems as unjust, The act of its fellow men?

The history of the Thirties, here in this village, would not be complete without reference being made to the trial and execution of George Porter for the murder of Isaac Richardson.

Richardson seems to have been an early settler in the Maumee country; and in the twenties had built a sawmill and tavern near Rush-ta-boo Rock above Waterville, on the Lucas county side of the river. He has been described by those who knew him, as a tall and lean man, of sandy complexion and choleric temperament. He seems always to have been in trouble with his neighbors, and the early court records of Wood county bear witness to the fact that he was arrested and fined several times for petty offenses; such as keeping tavern and selling whiskey without a license; for abusing an officer of the law, etc. Richardson's tavern was a log structure, composed of two wings, with a hallway through the center, and it stood near the bank of the Maumee.

On the other hand, Porter, who killed Richardson, was a man of probable blameless habits and disposition, and was generally respected in the community round about. He was a Canadian, and being a carpenter, had come to this country to seek employment. He hired out to Richardson to work in his sawmill and at carpenter work; but for a long time had never received any pay for his services, his employer putting him off with one excuse and another. Finally, becoming hard up for money, the claim was pressed, and it was then that Richardson refused to pay at all, telling Porter to get the money the best way he could, besides taunting and abusing him whenever they chanced to meet. It is also said that Richardson had made a trip to Canada where he had collected moneys due there to Porter and which he had failed to turn over. This was also another bone of contention. This all happened during the summer of 1830, eighty-six years ago. Things went on from bad to worse. Porter became penniless and constantly brooded over his troubles.

It was in "Dog Days," on the afternoon of the 12th of August while working in the harvest field, on the old Reed farm below Waterville, that he is said to have resolved to take Richardson's life. It was a sultry afternoon. Stimulating his already overheated brain with draughts of whiskey, he procured what was then called a "squaw gun," and loading it with slugs and buckshot, he made his way at once to the log tavern. It was just dusk. Richardson was seated in his hallway with his little child upon his knees, conversing with a way-farer who was

GARDEN NOTES

Of Interest to the Man Who Cultivates a Garden.

Asparagus cutting should be discontinued during the latter part of June. Begin to feed the plantation as soon as cutting stops. Apply a mulch in the furrows and cross harrow. Poultry makes the best mulch. Make successive plantings of sweet corn, beans, beets, carrots and lettuce during the month. Celery plants should go into the field the latter part of this month or early in July. Watch the cabbage plants for worms. Use fresh white hellebore at the rate of one ounce to three gallons of water as a spray when they appear. Apply bordeaux mixture to celery, cucumbers, melons and potatoes at frequent intervals, at least every 10 days. For the potato beetle on potatoes, egg plant or tomatoes use arsenate of lead at the rate of three pounds to 50 gallons of water as a spray and apply thoroughly. The arsenate may be used with bordeaux at the same rate as for clear water. If troubled with squash vine borer in squashes and pumpkins, apply tobacco dust liberally at frequent intervals close about the stems and encourage the rooting of the vines along the stems by drawing moist soil up over them.

SOME OBSERVATIONS.

Three hundred and twenty-five railroads went through the last fiscal year without a single fatality to a passenger in a train accident. The "safety first" campaign has amply justified itself.
